As a kid, I loved to wear my NFL jersey and pretend I was playing in the Super Bowl... against the Cowboys! I would pretend
I played quarterback, wide receiver, punter, and cornerback. And I would pretend that my team won by 63 points, and

I scored every touchdown and was MVP!

Oh well, maybe next year.

Think like a star.

Look like a star.

Be a star.

MASK

Contest Winner Revealed

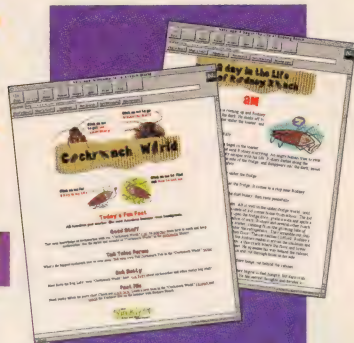

We asked what you, our wacky D.A. readers, would turn into if you could put on Stanley Ipkiss' mask—and boy, did you tell us! We read 2,700 entries before picking 8-year-old Brian Gabbay of Beverly Hills, California, as the lucky winner. His character? A cheese grater. “I would grate the bad guys and turn them into cheese,” Brian wrote. “Then I would eat the green, yucky cheese, which would taste like dirt. Then my teeth, eyes and tongue would pop out because it tasted so yucky!”

Brian won a trip to Los Angeles, California, to meet voice-over actors behind the animated TV series “The Mask” and to record his voice for the show. D.A. hit the studio to listen as he taped his guest part.

Listen for Brian in the episode of “The Mask” called “The Green Machine,” airing this fall.

D.A. Was Here...

In just 24 hours, D.A. was all over the map—hitting the major events in party-town U.S.A. (also known as Hollywood). Our first stop was at an oh-so-retro '50s party for the cast of the new movie Leave It to Beaver (in theaters next summer). We ate Popsicles and cookies and drank soda out of a bottle, just like they used to do in the good ol' days.

Cameron Finley, 8, the new Theodore "Beaver" Cleaver, charmed everybody and seemed to have a lot in common with the original Beav: "I get in trouble, and I have these big floppy teeth," he said.

There...

Then D.A. was first on the scene for the opening of Jurassic Park—The Ride at Universal Studios Hollywood. Well, us and a bajillion other people and...

Which one was the scary-cat —Schwarzkopf or Spielberg?

ohmigosh!...Steven Spielberg himself! But get this: Steven was chicken. Yup, the man who terrified us with Jurassic Park and Jaws was afraid of his own ride! What scared him? "The drop," he said. "I don't like roller coasters, so they can let me off just before that. I'll be waving from the bottom when you come down."

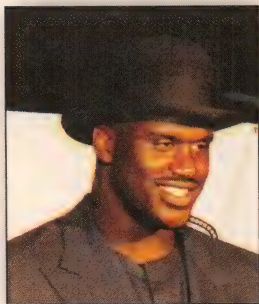

And Everywhere!

Then we got dolled up in our slickest styles 'cause D.A. was on the VIP list to the coolest party ever—the MTV Movie Awards. We hung out with megastars like Alicia Silverstone, Shaquille O'Neal, Brandy and Chris Farley. Here are some highlights:

Super Shaq

We thought we spied a giant but were relieved to discover it was only basketball great Shaquille O'Neal, who played with a yo-yo while making his entrance. We spotted a huge gold ring on his finger, with a Superman "S" in diamonds. And when we asked him about his giant-size clothes, he told us, "My mom picked this suit out!"

All for Alicia

As if! D.A. tried to get the inside scoop, but Alicia Silverstone kept her lips zipped about the new Bat flick, Batman and Robin, which starts filming in September (she plays Batgirl). Instead, she showed off her two new MTV Movie Awards (for Clueless) and told us she's on her way to becoming a big-time movie producer.

It's a Date

When singer Brandy showed up to claim her award for Best Song, we were curious to hear about her very first date—to NBA star Kobe Bryant's high school prom! She wouldn't give us details, but she did say, "I took lots of pictures, and I had to smile a lot. It was a really fun night!"

Not-So-Tasty Treats

Crazy Chris Farley likes popcorn with his movies, and who can blame him? But when he won an MTV Movie Award—it's a bronzed popcorn container—for his role in Tommy Boy, he tried to eat it! "I was trying to take the gold wrapper off," he told us, "because I thought there was chocolate inside!"

On the Set of

HOME IMPROVEMENT

By Kim Lockhart

You see the "Tool Time" set every week, but have you ever really looked at the knickknacks on it? There's a lot more than just Binford tools and a fire extinguisher. D.A. sneaked into the studio where "Home Improvement" is filmed and begged set decorator Jeannie Gunn and prop master Warren Shaffer to dish about the set secrets. Here's the scoop:

Tim Allen—also known as Tim "The Toolman" Taylor—looooves airplanes. So there are planes—like these, hanging to the left of the metal "Tool Time" doors—all over the set. The framed helicopter photo was a gift from a test pilot who attended a taping of "HI."

Speaking of gifts from fans, almost everything above the bookshelf—including the hand-painted tree saw and the two-handed hammer made just for Tim and Al (Richard Karn)—was sent to the show by viewers. One fan even carved “Tim ‘The Toolman’ Taylor” and “Al ‘Mr. Flannel’ Borland” into blocks of wood.

Mario Andretti gave Tim this autographed steering wheel and mini reproduction of his race car.

Sure, this looks like a miniature workbench. But look again! It's really a teapot (sent in by a fan) that's been sitting on the red, rolling tool box for years. (On our visit, it was out getting cleaned!)

(Miss) Piggy's Back

By Liz Smith

A hoy, mateys! Those swashbuckling Muppets take to the high seas in Muppet Treasure Island, which lands in your video store this month. Her Pinkness, Miss Piggy, plays Benjamina Gunn, the leopard-skin-clad island goddess. She was oh-so-gracious during our interview—except when an innocent little question got her hot under the snout!

D.A.: What was the best thing about this role?

M.P.: I would say that moi's romantic scenes with Kermit were the most fun. I'm sure it was the most fun thing for him, too. You can take moi's word for it—you don't have to ask him.

D.A.: Was that really you in the cliff-hanging scene, or was it a stunt pig?

M.P.: Moi really hung off the cliff. As a superstar, moi's fans expect me to do my own stunts—and the producer was too cheap to hire a stunt pig.

D.A.: Describe your movie-set trailer for us.

M.P.: It's quite modest actually. There's a

"I'd like to be stranded on a desert island with Kermit—only Kermit...and a decent supply of snack food," says Miss Piggy.

big-screen TV, a king-size bed, a large fridge, a bowling alley and a huge walk-in closet.

D.A.: Do you have plans to work with Apollo 13 star Kevin Bacon?

M.P.: Is that a pig slur? Look, DISNEY ADVENTURES, you don't hear moi making any "mousetrap" jokes, do you?

Free Video!

The first 50 kids to write asking for a free Muppet Treasure Island video will get one! Send a postcard with your name, address, phone number and age to: Ticket/Muppet Treasure Island, DISNEY ADVENTURES, 500 S. Buena Vista St., Burbank, CA, 91521-6153.

The D.A. List

By Liz Smith

Alien Alert!

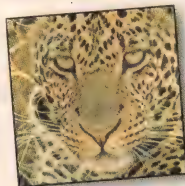

So you're back in school, huh? Does it seem like your new teacher is acting a little...odd? Maybe it's just us. Maybe we've been watching too many reruns of "The X-Files," and maybe we saw ID4 three times too many, but we've got aliens on the brain!

Here are five surefire signs that your teacher is an alien:

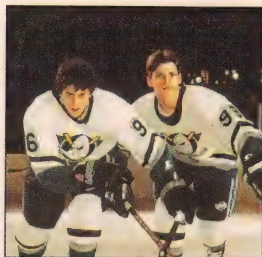

1. An invisible force field around his desk repels spitwads.
2. She gives you homework assignments via mental telepathy.
3. He insists on taking field trips to Area 51.
4. When you get in trouble, she doesn't ask to meet with your parents. Instead, she says, "Take me to your leader."
5. He refers to your school as "The Mother Ship."

The Quack Attack Is Back—Again!

In the movie D3: The Mighty Ducks, the Ducks return to once again battle big bullies and win an important hockey game. This time, the team plays for the ritzy Eden Hall Academy, and the game to win is the junior varsity state championship. A new coach, a new school and an angry varsity Cub scout: The purr-fect star of The Leopard Son.

Duck! It's another MD flick!

team—the older brothers of kids cut from the JV squad—keep the Ducks busy on and off the ice in this three-quel. Quack!

A Wild Time on the Serengeti

Feline fanatics should check out The Leopard Son, a new movie shot on location in Africa. Filmmaker Hugo van Lawick has lived and worked among the wild animals in the Serengeti National Park for more than 30 years. For this film, he followed a leopard cub for more than two years as the little guy learned the skills necessary for survival.

"Leopards are by far the most difficult of the big cats to film," Hugo says. But he managed to film a leopard and cub doing some exciting things—like the cub going on its first solo hunting expedition, and encountering lions, hyenas and baboons—oh, my!

Mouthin' Off

"On the real earth, I haven't seen any men in tights that I've been weak-kneed for,"
—actress Teri Hatcher (Lois Lane on "Lois and Clark") when asked if she has a romantic attachment to Superman in real life.

D.A.: How often do you ride the rails during the summer?

J.B.: About once a week. We go to roller-coaster conventions in other states. You get up at 6 a.m. and get ERT—"exclusive ride time"—so you don't have to wait in long lines.

D.A.: Have you ever tossed your cookies on a ride?

J.B.:

No, I've even eaten a full order of fries right before going on the Magnum at Cedar Point in Sandusky, Ohio—it goes 72 miles per hour—and not felt queasy.

D.A.: What's the weirdest question kids ask you about coasters?

J.B.: They always ask, "What's your favorite coaster?" as if I could choose just one. I go, "I don't have a favorite. I just ride, man!"

They're the newest superheroes in the galaxy—SIX DUCKS who have traveled through a dimensional portal to save Earth from their archenemy, the reptilian Lord Dragaunus. They're the Mighty Ducks, the puck-playing, crime-fighting teenage stars of "Mighty Ducks: The Animated Series."

Born in the hockey-worshipping galaxy Duckworld, they currently reside in a SUPERCOOL HIDEOUT underneath their hockey arena, Anaheim Pond.

We talked to Joe Barruso, the show's producer and director, to get the scoop on the Ducks' headquarters.

THE INFIRMARY —

Like any military base, the Ducks' headquarters has a sick bay for running medical tests and tending to injuries.

THE READY ROOM — This is the Ducks' control center and home to Drake One, a giant computer. "It's the most powerful computer on Earth," Joe says. "It does whatever the Ducks need it to do."

ANIMATED AND READY TO SAVE THE WORLD!

THE ELEVATOR TUBES—The Ducks use these chutes to travel anywhere in their headquarters, including up to the locker rooms.

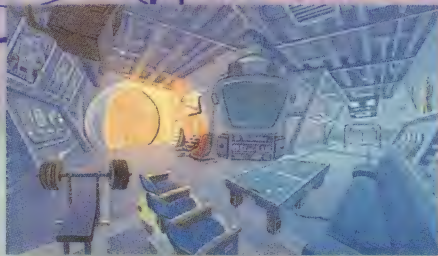

THE HANGAR—Vehicles are hidden beneath the ice. “It cracks open and they come out of the hangar,” Joe says. The roof even opens for the Ducks’ plane to fly out!

LIVING QUARTERS—

Each Duck has a bedroom. (Nosedive's pad at right.) Would you want to bunk with big ol' Grin? Didn't think so.

IAN ZIERING AS WILDWING

The Ducks' leader wears a special mask that gives him extraordinary leadership qualities.

WHY BE

WILDWING? "I think Wildwing is very gung-ho. He's now the leader of an intergalactic band of ducks. At first, he's not too comfortable with this. But with the mask, he's able to lead fearlessly...and I like that!"

STEVE MACKALL AS NOSEDIVE

Nosedive, Wildwing's little bro, tends to bite off more than he can chew.

STEVE'S HOCKEY

HISTORY: "There was a creek behind the house where I grew up. When it started to freeze, my friends and I would make goiposts with tree branches, so when it froze solid they'd be stuck there. Then we'd play hockey wearing our regular shoes....We weren't coordinated enough to skate."

DENNIS FRANZ AS OFFICER KLEGGHORN

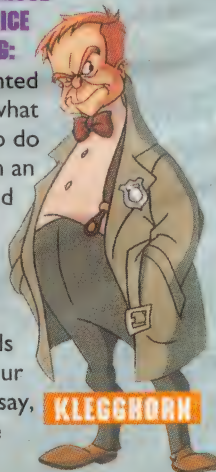

As commanding officer of the Anaheim police, it's Klegghorn's job to keep the peace around the Pond.

THE SCHOOL OF VOICE ACTING:

director's favorite direction was, 'Let's do it a little bigger.' I have three ranges: loud, louder and loudest."

JENNIFER HALE AS MALLORY

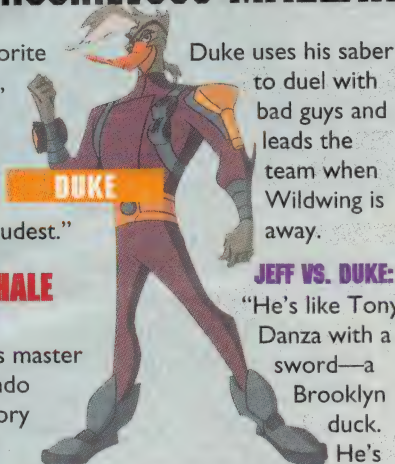

A martial-arts master with commando training, Mallory loves to take charge.

JENNIFER VS. MALLORY: "My bill is slightly smaller than hers. And I get a big, fat kick out of Nosedive. Mallory gets a kick out of him, too—but she also wants to kill him."

JEFF BENNETT AS DUKE L'ORANGE

A former cat burglar,

Duke uses his saber to duel with bad guys and leads the team when Wildwing is away.

JEFF VS. DUKE:

"He's like Tony Danza with a sword—a Brooklyn duck. He's been around the pond a few times and has a great hairdo. We don't look alike... except for our hair."

APRIL WINCHELL AS TANYA

A scientific expert, Tanya is the main brain of the Ducks.

GRIN

THE VOICE: "I think Tanya always has a cold or terrible allergies, so I speak mostly in my nose and head. She also stutters a little bit, which I think is due to her brain going so fast. Tanya thinks faster than she speaks, and I speak faster than I think."

BRAD GARRETT AS GRIN

The most mysterious of the Ducks, Grin is as big as Hulk Hogan and as mellow as yellow.

BRAD ON GRIN: "He's the biggest, baddest hockey player, but he's also into Zen and meditation. Grin says things like, 'Become one with the net.' He's the strongest Duck—he could open a bag of airline peanuts by himself!"

Missing the excitement of the Olympics? Try camel races instead. Hundreds of camel jockeys will hop on their humps and hurry to the finish line when the annual Camel Derby gets under way October 22. The derby takes place in Maralal, Kenya. Sorry, it won't be on ESPN.

Duck for a Day

FACE-OFF

My day as a Mighty Duck took place during a lengthy practice session in Anaheim, California, where the players showed me some basic hockey skills and supercool secrets. Read on for the icy details!

Saucering a puck is the coolest. That's when you

As soon as I hit the ice with the Mighty Ducks, center Jean-Francois Jomphe, a feisty French-Canadian with a thick accent, skated over and screeched to a stop inches from my face.

It was face-off time. I asked J.F. what the key was to winning a face-off, which occurs when a referee drops the puck between two opposing players who then battle for it. "Simple," J.F. said, grinning. "Work hard, and get the puck!" We crouched down low, clutching our sticks. J.F. stuck his nose right up against mine and glared at me. I stared back. Apparently, we would have a staring contest before the face-off! Finally, after an eternity, he busted up laughing and skated away.

"You crack me up," he said, circling back.

So J.F. had the first laugh. Would I have the last?

We resumed our positions. I balanced myself on the sides of my skates with my legs apart, and the ref threw the puck down between us.

With a flick of his wrist and a flash of his stick, J.F. had control of it. Another face-off ended the same way. And another, and another. I never had a chance. J.F. always had the puck before I even saw it. Once, he toyed with me by shoving it between his feet and behind him! The whole time, J.F. had that big smile on his face. And he never did let me win a single face-off.

In other words, he had the first and last laughs.

Ducks center J.F. Jomphe and I went nose-to-nose in pursuit of that crazy little puck.

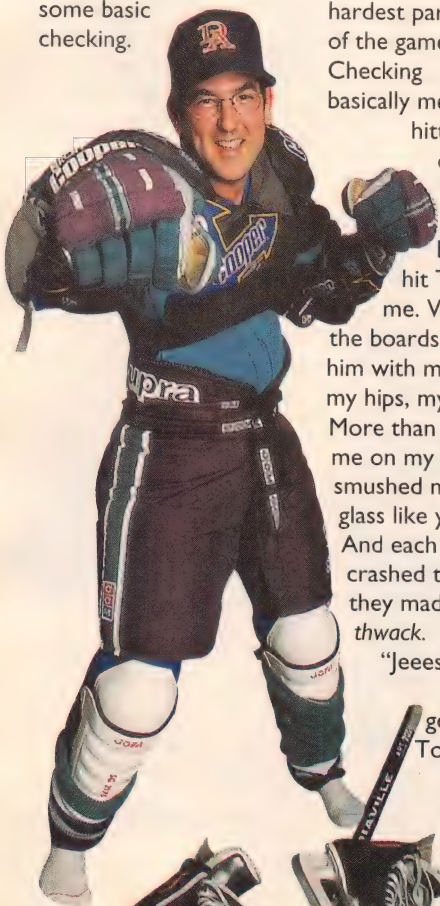

Use your stick to shoot the puck by spinning it in the air like a flying saucer. But it isn't easy!

Check

Todd Ewen was the Mighty Ducks enforcer, the guy who excels at the rough stuff. For my next lesson, I was about to become his personal crash-test dummy.

Together we skated over to the boards (the "wall" around the rink) for some basic checking.

Todd says this is the hardest part of the game. Checking basically means hitting other players with your body. So, I hit Todd. He hit me. We both hit the boards. I checked him with my shoulders, my hips, my whole body. More than once, he put me on my butt or smushed me against the glass like you see here. And each time we crashed the boards, they made a LOUD thwack.

"Jeeesh," I said.

"Sounds good, huh?"

Todd replied.

Then he showed me his three coolest secrets. The first was how to slam your body into a skater and steal the puck from him at the same time. "You hit him high, and as he hits the boards, you steal the puck," Todd said. I tried it a few times, and it worked. Sort of. It would have helped if Todd were smaller.

The second trick was something I'll call the bounced check. "Hit me," Todd begged as he stood near the boards.

So I hit him. But, he bounced off the boards and right back into me, knocking me off my skates. I felt the reverberations throughout my entire body.

"Are you at all worried about me hurting you?" I kidded the toughest member of the Mighty

Mates

"I can just bounce off and hit you back so you fall down," he said.

"Uh, I see."

Finally, Todd faced the boards, with his back to me and the puck at his feet. He told me to try to get the puck.

But I couldn't. Without turning, he kept blocking my way with his shoulders, as if he had eyes in the back of his head. How'd he do it? "I can see your reflection in the glass above the boards," Todd said. "I can really mess with you by checking that out."

Talk about a neat, nasty trick!

Todd was more than happy to slam me into the boards a few times. Notice how he's smiling and I'm not? Lots of pads (far left) help cushion the blows.

Guarding the National Hockey League players can send a puck flying through the air

Imagine crouching in front of a net and letting a bunch of skaters use you for target practice. They'll only fire a rock-hard puck at every part of your body for 60 minutes!

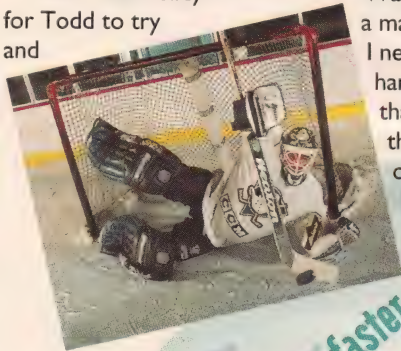

Such is the life of an NHL goalkeeper. Now it was my turn.

Mighty Ducks goalie Guy Hebert showed me how to get comfortable in front of the goal in a sort of sitting, crouched position.

"Try to get anything you can in front of that puck," Guy said. "The goal is your house; guard it with your life. What gets you in trouble is being out of position."

Then I was ready for Todd to try and beat me. The 230-pound winger skated right at me and blasted away.

The puck flew up in the air and right at me.

But before I could blink, it flew over my left shoulder and into the goal. Score!

Todd continued shooting, one puck at a time, as I flailed and lunged all over the place. "There are a lot of holes, eh?" asked Todd as he slapped pucks past me.

"Yeah," I replied.

"Way too many, as a matter of fact." I never got the hang of catching that puck with the glove, but oh that blocking pad

on my right

forearm—I loved using it for making saves. (Yes, I made a few!)

Hot, tired and sweaty, I skated away with newfound respect for hockey, especially the art of goalkeeping. Guy, you've got to have one of the toughest jobs in all of professional sports.

Better you than me!

at 70 or 80 miles per hour, sometimes even faster. It can hurt!

COMICS ZONE

WELCOME TO THIS MONTH'S COMICS ZONE

Battle supreme:

If you read Marvel Comics, you know that the Marvel Universe has been shaken up quite a bit by a superpowerful villain known as Onslaught. This fall, comics artists Jim Lee and Rob Liefeld are creating new versions of Fantastic Four, Captain America, Iron Man and Avengers. Jim will work on the new FF and Iron Man, and Rob is taking over Cap and Avengers.

Let me know what you think. Write to me:
Heidi MacDonald

Look for some huge changes in these comics. For instance, the new Captain America opens in a mysterious world where Cap doesn't remember that he is a hero. I asked Rob what to look for in the new Cap: "To me, he embodies the true superhero. He's not on a mission of vengeance. He doesn't have some otherworldly agenda. He doesn't cash a paycheck. He just gets up every day and does what's right."

Doug™

Doug Funnie and his friends from "Doug" move to ABC Saturday mornings and a new school—talk about nerve-wracking!

veryone's favorite daydreaming, doodling, chocolate-shake-consuming 11 1/2-year-old cartoon kid is back! But things around Bluffington, home of Doug Funnie and his friends, sure are changin'...

Over the summer, Doug let his hair grow out. It looked really hip, but his mom made him cut it to look nice for school—middle school! The haircut was no big deal, but school's another story. Oh, and in major life-changing news, the Funnies are expecting a new baby!

All these changes are making Doug kinda nervous.

Still, he jumped at the chance to meet us for chocolate shakes and talk about all the brand-spanking-new stuff in his life:

Q: What's new, Doug?

A: A lot! My 12th

SHAKE IT UP: They're just friends, but Doug's secret wish is to kiss Patti right on the lips.

birthday is coming up! I may finally catch up to my friends. I'm tired of being the youngest in my class.

Q: You're going to middle school, too. Right?

A: Yep—and I'm kinda nervous. I've heard it's so hard they don't even give you the questions.

Q: How's your best friend, Skeeter Valentine?

A: Well, he had a growth spurt.

Or at least his arms did. But other than that, he's the same kid.

Q: Do you still hang at the Honker Burger?

A: No. The Honker Burger is gone. Vamoosed!

Our new school is built on the site of Fat Jack's Trailer Park, where Roger the bully lived. Fat Jack took the money they paid him for the land, bought the Honker Burger and is turning it into Chez Honk. Now we've got to find some other place to hang out.

Q: Is there something you'd like to do this year?

A: My new plan is to sneak up and kiss Patti Mayonnaise on New Year's Eve or April Fools' Day. That way, if she screams or throws up, I can pretend it was a joke.

Q: Are you nervous about moving to Saturday Mornings?

A: Yeah. I hope kids get up early to watch us. Your parents

BONE CHILLERS

You think your school is scary? Wait till you see Edgar Allen Poe High!

For most kids, school is a worry-fest of pop quizzes, wacko teachers and mysterious school lunches. Fitz, Brian, Lexi and Sarah have to worry about all that plus the monsters, zombies and ghouls who haunt the hallways of Edgar Allen Poe High.

These four lowly freshmen are magnets for weirdness in the otherwise picture-perfect town of Smiley Heights, U.S.A. When sparring with spooks, our fearless foursome sneaks through a secret passageway in Locker 13 to reach the hideaway of the school's bizarre and all-knowing janitor, Arnie.

The cast members—Esteban Powell, John P. White, Saadia Persad, Linda Cardellini and Charles

ARNIE THE JANITOR: "He's unusual," says actor Charles Fleischer. "His body parts always move around."

Fleischer—shared their humorous horror stories:

Esteban Powell as Brian Hoseapple

On Brian: "Brian's an I-know-everything-I-just-can't-remember-it-all-at-once person. And he doesn't remember it at the worst possible times."

Scariest moment on the set: "We set off the

THE BULLIES: Football players Kirk and Buddy sprinkler system because a hot light was too close to the ceiling. The water flooded the graveyard, and that was kind of hairy."

John P. White as Fitzgerald Crump

On Fitz: "Fitz isn't the most popular kid, but he's not a geek. He's smart, but he doesn't apply himself—he's always doodling."

Making monsters:

"We had molds of our heads made for special-effects makeup. You put your head in what looks like a big Jell-O mold, and then it's wrapped in a cast. Then you sit for what feels like days."

Saadia Persad as Lexi Orwell

On Lexi: "Lexi wants everybody to be happy, happy, happy—if that's possible at Edgar Allen Poe High."

Haunted hall: "The first day of shooting, I had to go through a long, dark hallway. I ran through really fast! Then I walked out really slow, like, 'I'm cool.'"

Linda Cardellini as Sarah Moss

On Sarah: "She always

GARGOYLES

The GOLIATH CHRONICLES

The defenders of the night spin off...and into the public eye.

Years ago in Europe, people created monster sculptures called "gargoyles" that they put on buildings to protect them from evil spirits.

Today, some of the coolest winged beings can be found on TV. They're the Gargoyles, now starring in a Saturday-morning spin-off titled "Gargoyles: The Goliath Chronicles."

By night, Goliath, Broadway, Brooklyn, Hudson, Lexington,

Angela and Bronx fight to save Manhattan from crime. They're helped by New York police detective Elisa Maza. At sunrise, they turn to stone to sleep and heal their wounds.

As "The Goliath Chronicles" begins, the Gargoyles have just returned to New York, which is now a much less friendly place.

After briefly joining forces with the villainous Gargoyle Demona to avenge Angela's near-death, the Gargoyles were revealed to the public by the Hunter Jon Canmore. Now panic has taken over the city. No one knows if the Gargoyles are good or evil.

DEMONA: Her 100-year battle with the Hunters has put the Gargoyles in danger.

To make matters worse, the Hunter has organized a clan of Gargoyle-haters—the Quarrymen—who have vowed to stop at nothing until the Gargoyles are captured...or worse!

GOLIATH AND XANATOS: Once enemies, they've joined forces against the Quarrymen.

because she's extremely popular.

The Jungle Book characters are back...but they're not quite as old as you may remember them. In this animated adventure, Bagheera, Prince Louie, Baloo, Kaa, Hathi and Shere Khan are just babes learnin' the laws of the jungle. They're also avoiding the traps set for them by dim-witted buzzards Cecil and Arthur. The tunes they travel to can't be beat; the great blues singer Lou Rawls croons "Bare Necessities."
